COMPANY OVERVIEW:

Climate PROSPERITY Enterprise Solutions, LLC, (CPES), utilizes an innovative, and successful business model to engage “the fortune at the bottom of the pyramid (BOP),” as identified by the globally recognized business management thinker, the late Professor C. K. Prahalad, father of the concepts of core competency and BOP.

CPES owns its own proprietary, bottom-up Enterprise Solution™ model with a proven track record of success that maximizes local population enterprise, home ownership, job-creation and new income opportunities.

Like industry leaders Microsoft (software), Thomson Reuters (information), Royal Philips (health care), GlaxoSmithKline (pharmaceuticals), DSM (food supplements), Intel (computing), ING (microfinance), Monsanto (agriculture) and Vodafone (telecom), CPES engages the BOP market by introducing its technology top-down to senior political and economic decision-makers to which it has direct access.

The combination of trusted relationships at the top and engagement and trust at the bottom of the economic pyramid dramatically diminishes risk and increases profitability of the win-win solution: an enterprise solution that has attracted companies like Lockheed Martin ($46 Billion) and L-3 ($16 Billion) to participate in our first projects.

CPES currently has seven projects in the pipeline in three geographic markets: Western Hemisphere, Africa, and Asia Pacific.

Note: CPES has been invited to Central America, Mexico, and Chile at the highest political levels to engage in projects similar to those described above, through relationships developed by our corporate director, Ambassador Otto Reich, the former under-Secretary of State for the Western Hemisphere under President George W. Bush. CPES' strategy is to pursue multiple projects simultaneously with parallel teams skilled in the political, economic and cultural realities of the identified nations.*
